

Library Launches Free Online Technology Classes for Patrons

The Truth or Consequences Library has launched a new online resource offering free technology and personal enrichment classes for our community. In partnership with the New Mexico State Library and GetSetUp, these virtual classes are designed especially for older adults to build confidence in using technology, stay safe online, and explore personal growth topics—ranging from internet basics to creative writing and virtual travel.

With over 5,000 courses available in multiple languages and led by engaging experts, there's something for everyone to enjoy and learn. Best of all, they're free and easily accessible through the Library Department drop-down menu on our city website. Want the flyer and full course catalog? Visit the site now and dive into the world of learning at your fingertips.

City Targets Pay Equity with Compensation Study Implementation

The city is taking major steps to modernize its employee pay structure based on a recent compensation study. With a focus on fairness and market alignment, the proposed changes could impact pay for hourly and salaried staff. Learn what's next, the possible cost, and when changes may occur. Read the full story on our website to see how the city is working toward a more equitable future for its workforce.

You've Read About WSPI-2, Now Visit City Blueprint

The Sentinel has unveiled the next phase of the city's long-term improvement plan. To explore the full scope of the project—including detailed maps and area highlights—visit torcnm.org/cityblueprint and view the informational grid.

Lights, Drones, Action: A24 Premieres Eddington in TorC

A24 Premieres Eddington in Truth or Consequences – with a Dazzling Drone Twist! Hollywood buzz meets hometown pride as city officials welcomed studio A24 for the premiere of Eddington—plus a surprise drone show that left locals talking and social media glowing. With background actors, local vendors, and sky-high visuals over Rotary Park, this event turned heads and brought the community together.

Want to know how your neighbors got involved, what the city did behind the scenes, and when the next screening hits the El Cortez? Read more on our city webpage.

